Pervasive potholes plague city streets

The 2013-14 pothole season is shaping up to be one of the worst in recent memory. Scranton residents have vented their frustrations all over social media. On Twitter, Scranton has been dubbed "Pothole Central," "one giant pothole," and "The Pothole City." On Facebook, the "Scranton Pot Holes" page is up to 555 "likes."

Swiss cheese roads even led the local transit system to start using temporary detours on Monday.

The County of Lackawanna Transit System announced detours for the No. 36 Lafayette bus and the No. 52 Carbondale bus because of rough road conditions and construction on normal routes.

A car avoids a deep potholes on Penn Avenue in downtown Scranton on Tuesday.
